Grade 12 EnglishPoetry: UNDERSTANDING CITY JOHANNESBURGPraise poetry is not all about praising the king. The praise poet has a license and a duty also to criticize, and “City Johannesburg” is then a critical praise poem to the city. It acknowledges the centrality of the city to the speaker’s life, but criticizes that centrality.

Big Words: City Johannesburg By Mongane Serote | Rustum KozainDesiree Lewis, referring to the poem ‘Ofay-Watcher Looks Back’, writes, “The poem is charged in the way it palpably evokes a yearning – existential, political and also, (impossible word for South Africans in the seventies), spiritual – to introspectively and retrospectively think about what be-ing in this place at this time actually means.” This is a somewhat out-of-date social comment about life in Johannesburg at the heart of the apartheid era.
